2019 STARBOOKS Update

John Dominick A. Agarín

STARBOOKS is short for Science and Technology Academic and Research-Based Openly Operated Kiosk Stations. With resources such as e-books, texts, images, and helpful videos, it has been a great help for every student researching science, technology, and other subjects. Since 2016 STARBOOKS has been a great support to study generally for students, and become one of the most useful instruments for studying inside every library of the URS campus.

The DOST STARBOOKS is continuously upgrading and updating its system to be more useful and resourceful to its users and researchers. With its last update, the STARBOOKS added some system features and update its collections of resources. It can now provide some sources of information for every Senior High School Student.

Before the system update, STARBOOKS provides a unique system-generated username but with its new feature, you can now feel free to create your personalized username. System generated username was a bit too long, making it hard to memorize, but with this system enhancement logging in would be easy as it seems. For those users who have already an account, they can still use the old generated username, logging in after the update will require you to create a new username.

Because the world continues to evolve and enhance and so our libraries, with the help of instruments and materials such as DOST STARBOOKS, we can cope up with the fast pace of our technology-driven society. Our libraries now can give smart and efficient information for every researcher's clientele.
